IPBGG EXTENDS A WARM WELCOME TO THE FOLLOWING
NEW STUDENTS FOR SUMMER 2023:

Skye Remko

Ms. Skye Remko is a Research Assistant in the IPBGG M.S. program for 2023, working with Dr. Wayne Parrott. Her research focuses on the transformation of switchgrass for the production of biofuel.

Skye received her Bachelor of Science degree in Ecology with a minor in Genetics from the University of Georgia in May 2023.

Her previous employment experience includes a position as an Undergraduate Researcher in Dr. Scott Merkle's lab at the University of Georgia, where she worked on American Chestnut transformation and tissue culture and the tissue culture of other rare and threatened tree species. Additionally, she completed an undergraduate thesis entitled "4 Years After Tropical Storm Nate: The Recovery of Macroinvertebrate Community Composition in a Neotropical Stream in Costa Rica"

Please welcome Skye to our Institute. Her workspace is located in Athens, CAGT 141 and her email address is ser22398@uga.edu
